

Public Speaking for Scientists

Content

Learn how to master the presentation of your research. Explain, teach and convince better with just a few tips and tricks. Profit from the opportunity to present your work and get personal feedback about your public speaking.

In this course you learn the basics of efficient and effective communication. In addition to the structure and preparation of a speech and with a focus on how to present on stage (stance, body language, gestures, voice and articulation, mimics and eye-contact), you will learn the theory and apply it in practice. You will refine your impromptu speaking skills as well as prepare a scientific speech in your field of expertise.

The course aims to provide you with the tools to improve your speaking skills as well as offer you the opportunity to try them out in an inter-disciplinary setting.

Learning objectives

Participants will learn about their individual public speaking strengths and their specific potential for improvement on stage. You will learn how to prepare a speech effectively and efficiently and how to present your scientific content, so it connects with your/the audience.

Whilst theory is important, you'll also practice your speaking-skills in plenary sessions and receive individual feedback.

Trainer

Melchior Glatthard has a Phd in Law and works as a Public Speaking Coach, Keynotespeaker, Notary Public and Attorney at Law.

In 2017 he won the European championships of public speaking in the fields of humorous and impromptu speech (Toastmasters, South-West Europe, District 59). Since then, he has been giving public speaking workshops at Universities (University of Berne, ETH Alumni) as well as for various companies (a.o. Johnson&Johnson, EY Switzerland, SBB Cargo, SWICA) and works as a voice-over artist.
